AGREEMENT IS MADE BETWEEN BRITAIN, U. S. ON CAMPAIGN

Churchill Characterizes Attack On Dieppe As "Reconnaissance in Force"

"FACT-FINDING" WORK

Russia Believes That Neither Britain Nor U. S. Are Doing Enough

By Charles A. Smith
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Characterizing the Commando attack on Dieppe as a "reconnaissance in force" for future offensives, Prime Minister Winston Churchill today revealed complete agreement between Great Britain and the United States on a vast campaign of action to crush Nazi Germany.

(Editor's note: An editorial message from London expressing conviction that the agreement provides for opening of a second front in Europe was passed through to New York by the British censors.)

(This message called attention to Churchill's declaration he personally sanctioned the Dieppe attack. The fact this action occurred so soon after Churchill's visit to Moscow, where Soviet leaders were blunt in criticism of the Anglo-American effort, revived speculation as to whether Stalin demanded quick action to relieve the pressure on his armies, the message said.)

In a lengthy war review of the House of Commons, Churchill laid stress on the "fact-finding" nature of the expedition.

He admitted at the same time that Soviet Russia frankly believes neither Britain nor the United States are doing enough to lift the weight of war from the Red armies.

Churchill did, however, promise future United Nations offensive against the Nazi-held continent of Europe on a "much larger scale" and assured the house that the United Nations have definite plans to "smite the foe" where and when the Allied high commands deem best.

"When the hour of liberation strikes in Europe," Churchill said, "there will also be an hour of retribution."

"Particularly do I identify His Majesty's government with the solemn words of President Roosevelt that those guilty of Nazi crimes will have to stand before tribunals in every land where atrocities have been committed in order that an indelible warning may be given to future ages and that successive generations may say: "So perish all who do the like again."

RATIONING BOARD WARNS AGAINST UNNECESSARY USE OF GASOLINE; MANY COMPLAINTS ARE BEING INVESTIGATED

The Bristol Rationing Board is now confronted with a situation that must be handled with firmness and determination. When the gasoline rationing began the "B" and "C" books were issued for a three months period. The use of the coupons in the "A" book was limited to a certain period (eight coupons every two months) but those in the "B" and "C" books could be used at any time within a period of three months.

In consequence, many defense workers thinking that because they were employed by the Government, they were immune to the gasoline rationing rules and could be reckless in the use of their rationing books, because the Government must furnish them with transportation if they wanted to keep the defense plants in operation.

As a result they have been prodigal

"WAACS" PROVE TO BE EXCELLENT TRAINEES

Show at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, That They Know How To Take It

DOCTORS ARE NOT BUSY

By Jane Cochran
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

FORT DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 8.—(INS)—The WAACS' get their share of blisters, "charlie horses" and muscle strains. They are soldiers and they have soldiers' reactions to drill.

But they're far from "sissies"—they really can "take it," their women doctors declared today.

The doctors, Mary L. Moore and Elizabeth Garber, are assigned to the fort as contract surgeons and are under the command of Col. T. E. Harwood, Jr., post surgeon.

"We haven't been at all busy since the WAACS arrived," attractive, dark-haired Dr. Moore said. "We've just had minor ailments such as blisters, colds, and shot reactions. The girls received typhoid, small pox and tetanus injections at once, and naturally it hit some of them pretty hard."

"But the girls are in marvelous physical condition and the training certainly agrees with them."

"We have trouble keeping the girls in the hospital," Dr. Garber added. "They want to get out just as soon as they get in and get back to their training. But outside of that they are very good patients."

Dr. Moore, of Rifle, Colo., formerly had her own private practice and Dr. Garber had been on the staff of the University of Indiana hospital ever since her graduation from the university medical school.

"Last December we both decided that we wanted to volunteer," Dr. Garber said, "so we put in our applications to the Surgeon General and he assigned us to the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. We wanted to do our part and decided this was the best way we could serve."

Any army doctor usually encounters a full share of "gold-bricking"—feigning illness to avoid military duty—but the WAACS don't seem to know the practice exists in the military world, the two doctors said.

"The girls don't come here until they just have to go to bed," Dr. Moore said.

MOTHERS' FIRST MEETING

A meeting of the Mothers' Association is scheduled for Wednesday evening at 8.15 o'clock in the Bristol high school. This is the first meeting of the season.

in the use of gasoline. Many reports have been received by the Rationing Board about the misuse of the rationing books. Finally the day of reckoning has come and many have used up all the gasoline allotted them for three months, and two months yet remain before the expiration date on their books. Now they are going to the Rationing Board and demanding more gasoline and threatening to stop work if it is not given to them. The Board is adamant to all their threats and has refused to allot them any more gasoline until the expiration date marked on their rationing books comes due.

Special provisions have been made for those who by reason of a change in the place of employment, mistake in mileage and other legitimate reasons need more gasoline. However, no application can be made until 30 days before the expiration date marked upon the rationing books. All such applications must be made on the official supplemental forms with a letter attached containing proof that extra mileage is needed with any additional information that will help to substantiate the claim.

A great many anonymous letters are being received by the Board in which charges are made against certain persons for misusing the gasoline rationing books.

"While it would be much more honorable for the writers to sign their names, yet the Board investigates all complaints and if the facts warrant it inflicts the penalty," said a spokesman. In one instance an investigation revealed that a young man had either been discharged or resigned his position and had failed to return his ration book as provided in the rationing laws. Instead he was joy riding and having a good time with the gasoline which had been allotted him for occupational mileage. He was notified to appear before the Board and surrender his book. Not appearing within the required time his name has been placed upon the "black list" and he will not be able to get any more gasoline during the duration of the war. This "black list" must be placed in the conspicuous place in the office of the Rationing Board.

"It would seem that the sooner some of these defense workers who are here for the duration of the war only, come to a realization that the Government is using every effort to win the war and that their employment in defense industries is a part of that effort and instead of abusing their privileges would show a gesture of patriotism by helping Uncle Sam to conserve gasoline, and tires, they would be able to check the increasing unpopularity which they by their own actions are bringing upon themselves," said the spokesman.

FLEETWINGS INSTITUTES NEW TRAINING COURSE

It Now Takes Shorter Time To Prepare To Be A Sheet Metal Worker

MUST BE 18 YEARS OLD

A new streamlined course of instruction designed to shorten the time it takes to prepare to be a sheet metal worker, has just been instituted at the Fleetwings Sheet Metal School on Radcliffe street. As a result, men and women who enroll in the school now are able to start earning at a much earlier date than their predecessors.

Every effort is being made to step up the process of instructing men and women anxious to take their place on the production line and help build airplanes and airplane parts so badly needed by our fighting men. Only recently this training course was opened to married women, and the entire instruction is given absolutely free.

Upon completion of the course the students are automatically eligible for a place in the Fleetwings shop. They are qualified sheet metal workers, capable of performing bench work of all types, or riveting on the sub-assembly or final-assembly lines in the aircraft factory.

Men and women 18 years old or older are eligible.

IS AN "EXERCISE BOY"

Hopes to See Her Own Horse Participate in The Races Today

Miss Shirley Rose Stanley, 16, who was injured when thrown from a horse she was exercising at Camden, N. J., on Sunday, returned to her Maple Shade home yesterday from Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Miss Stanley, who suffered bruises, brush burns, a strained wrist, and bruised eye is fairly well recovered today, according to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Stanley, Maple Shade.

Just what caused the accident the young woman is at a loss to state, so quickly did she strike the ground. She is the first feminine "exercise boy" of the Garden State Track, Camden, where she was injured.

Although feeling the results of her fall, Miss Stanley planned to go to the Camden races today, where it is expected that her own horse, "Steel Ship," will be entered. She will not be mounted, however, due to the ruling that no women riders are permitted to participate in the races.

At the time of the accident, Miss Stanley was mounted on "General Day," owned by May M. Jones. Miss Stanley works out a number of horses, in addition to training "Steel Ship," her own horse.

She will be a senior at Bensalem Township high school this fall, resuming her studies this week. She hopes after graduation there to study veterinary medicine.

One Man's Opinion By Walter Kiernan (I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Secretary Morgenthau is annoyed with people who say the spending tax is complex.

It is true that a people brought up on seven card stud with dauces and one-eyed jacks wild should be able to understand a tax plan.

But you can't shuffle, cut or deal a tax plan.

The way Mr. Morgenthau's spending tax would work would mean that a lot of persons making good wages for the first time in their lives wouldn't dare spend a dime.

That may be one way to check inflation but it also is a dandy way to raise a fine crop of dander.

Furthermore the spending tax looks suspiciously like one of those kinds of tax that moves in to stay.

During the last war we had "war taxes" and with that label it was difficult for any administration to keep them in force too long after hostilities ended.

"Spending tax" is an innocuous little tag with no war connotation and it might be hard to shake off.

Thought for the day: Let's have more and better "war taxes" with a time limit on them.

WAR LEADERS

As American air and ground fighting strength is being established in the British Isles for a joint campaign with empire troops to invade Europe, the question of supreme command becomes more important to the American people.

In considering this question, the administration should bear in mind that there is distrust of the British high command, both in Britain and in the United States. The failure of the British command to prepare its expeditionary force for the Dunkerque disaster stands as an accusation of costly shortsightedness.

The American people remember that for nearly four years the British rejected the joint high command idea during the First World War. It was not until the Germans broke through to the Channel ports in the spring of 1918, and raised fear of invasion in the United Kingdom, that the supreme command was given to Foch. Then, and not until then, could the Allied strategy be determined on a basis of Allied unity against German unity.

It is clear in the American mind, also, that as a democracy goes into war its high military commanders usually are men who have managed small peace armies and whose training for making strategic decisions usually was gained by studies of the preceding war. Against the staff work of the war-minded Germans who engage yearly in extensive maneuvers, the older, peacetime American and British officers are at an unavoidable disadvantage.

The American people were fortunate in having Pershing ready and able when they went into the First World War. They will be satisfied with nothing less than his qualities of leadership when their Army moves into an invasion of Europe.

CONVENTION CUSTOM

The convention habit is now so firmly rooted in the customs of America that the interruptions of wartime which have affected practically all activities are causing comparatively light elimination of major meetings.

An organization known as the International Association of Convention Bureaus estimates that there has been a cancellation or deferment of only 30 per cent of conventions normally held throughout the country. The bulk of these have been conventions of social organizations. Conventions least affected are in the industrial, trade and professional fields.

New York City is benefiting through switches in meeting places, due to overcrowded conditions in some of the popular convention places such as Atlantic City. Forty associations have shifted their conventions to the big city. Twenty-two associations which planned to convene in New York City have cancelled. The net result is a gain for Gotham. Bookings for the year to date show 553 conventions scheduled for New York City, a gain of sixteen over last year.

AN ARMY GAME

One of the newspapers had a picture of some American soldiers in England. They were grouped around a bare spot on the ground and under the cut were some lines that said they were playing a new game. They used white cubes marked with black dots.

The story didn't tell the name of this new pastime, apparently so popular with the Army. Maybe that's a military secret.

Attractive Costumes Worn By Bridal Party Members

A striking gown of pink eggshell satin was selected by Miss Jean Martino, 259 Cleveland street, for her marriage on Sunday to Mr. William Abate, Tullytown. The afternoon ceremony, at two o'clock in St. Ann's R. C. Church, was performed by the Rev. Father Peter Pinci, with Mr. James Martino giving his daughter away.

Mrs. Joseph Kerlyn, Elm street, served in the capacity of matron of honor; and the Misses Madeline Marini, Lafayette street, Margaret Waters, Croydon, and Mary Inzerillo, Cleveland street, were bridesmaids. Groomsman for Mr. Abate was Mr. Samuel Farrugio, Mansion street, with Messrs. Augustine Barksey, Yardley, and Sedo Monti, Tullytown, as ushers. The organist for the occasion was Miss Frances Tamburella.

The pink eggshell satin gown of the bride had a lengthy train. At either side of the sweetheart neckline were pearl clusters. The front of the bodice was shirred. Her heart-shaped headpiece of pink eggshell net was edged with lace, and a large cluster of orange blossoms was used as trim. The veil was of scalloped net. Satin slippers were in a matching shade, and the bride carried Easter lilies.

A gown of gold taffeta and net was worn by the matron of honor; and gowns patterned like it but in aqua tone were chosen by the trio of bridesmaids. From double ruffles of taffeta at the hip-lines, there fell net overskirts. Double ruffles of the taffeta also edged the net yokes. Sleeves were short and the bodices featured shirring. Satin slippers matched the individual gowns, as did also broad-brimmed hats of net which had feather trim. The four attendants carried colonial bouquets of mixed flowers.

Dinner was served at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Trenton, N. J., to members of the bridal party. Mr. Abate and bride are participating in a week's trip to New York City. The travelling costume of Mrs. Abate was a dress of orchid velvet, hat of gold-toned felt, accessories of orchid, and a corsage of lavender orchids. The newlyweds will reside at 212 McKinley street.

ON THE SCREENS

RITZ THEATRE

Some sixty-odd minutes of bang-up action, embracing some of the finest feats of horsemanship and gunplay ever caught by the motion picture camera, is on view at the Ritz Theatre, where "Secret of the Wastelands," latest of the "Hopalong" Cassidy action romance is showing.

"I Was Framed," thrill-packed story of a fighting reporter who insists on exposing a group of politicians, will have its local debut today at the Ritz Theatre.

The Great Game of Politics

adequate measure which, while it will satisfy no one, certainly will add greatly to our fiscal perils. This already has been made apparent through the evasion by both House and Senate, as by the Treasury, of the ultimately inevitable sales tax—and in other ways. Part of the responsibility is upon Congress, but largely the blame rests upon the Administration, because from it, in this emergency, we are entitled to expect sound and effective guidance. No one will contend that we have gotten it.

THIS NATION is engaged in the greatest and most deadly of all wars. Its people are taxed more heavily than ever before and are prepared to bear the even heavier taxes in prospect and to make every sacrifice demanded with complete cheerfulness. The vast war expenditures impose upon the Treasury problems of financing greater than any nation has ever faced. The whole Federal financial situation is one of unprecedented size and undreamed-of complexity. It would seem to require an Administration financial leadership of the highest type. Perhaps, the best financial brains in the country are not good enough to cope with these problems, but at least we ought to have them in Washington now.

HAVE WE GOT them there now? To ask the question is to be absurd. Everybody knows we have not. No one, inside or outside the Administration, will claim we have. But whom have we? We have Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and we have Under Secretary Daniel Bell. Mr. Morgenthau is an earnest, honest, well-intentioned public man, but to regard him as one of the outstanding financial figures of America is not possible even for his partial friends. Mr. Bell, a former Director of the Budget, is an excellent routine career man, but the idea of his coping singlehandedly with the gigantic war financing problems is not really tenable. As for the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury they are mostly obscure men whose names few can recall.

IN THIS CRISIS there seems no excuse for not drafting the big men of finance in the country and putting them to work in the Treasury, just as big men in industry have been drafted and put to work on production. But, that has not been done. Our Federal fiscal policy and tax leadership, such as it is, is being formed and furnished by the Treasury with essentially the same policy-making heads who were there before the war, unsupported by any outside talent at all. It is true there is more or less regular consultation with an outside committee of bankers and insurance men but this committee is called in after policy has been decided, not before, and the most it has been able to accomplish is to prevent one or two really serious mistakes.

ACTUALLY, THE Treasury is handling its appalling burdens with little or no outside assistance—so far as policies are concerned. Its clerical force has been tremendously augmented. A new army of men and women are employed on the stupendous routine of the war bond sales—and, incidentally, are from three to six months behind in the work. But, while American industry, called upon, has supplied the men who are handling the great problems of production, American finance has not been called upon to aid in handling the just as vital financial problems. The reason seems to be that because the best financial brains in the country have been consistently anti-New Deal, the President has not been able to bring himself to call upon them for aid. It would be a confession of financial incompetence extremely repugnant to his nature. If there is any other reason it has not been advanced. Yet, never was there a greater necessity for aid. As it stands the Treasury is pitifully unequipped to handle the situation. And this opinion is held within as well as without.

Pilgrim in MANHATTAN by MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS

Following her mother's death, Chloe Cameron, just 22 and fired with ambition to become a writer and entertainer, leaves her hometown of Wahalla, Oklahoma, and the opportunity to marry Nate Barlow, the town banker. She hopes to find a publisher for her book, "Songs of the Trail" and also sing her own cowboy and Indian songs. But her book is rejected and, after a vain tour of the theatrical agencies, Chloe takes a secretarial position with the Samuels' Bureau of Entertainment. There she meets, Rann Sturgis, prominent lawyer, when he comes in search of entertainers for a Society party. Rann leaves without taking any of Samuels' numbers, but says he may be able to use the "Jack Rabbit Girl" (Chloe's own specialty which she had offered as last resort) later. Chloe did not mention that she was the "Jack Rabbit Girl." That night, she phones Rann to tell him he left his pen at her office. He is out, so she leaves a message for him to call her. Returning from the store later, Chloe runs into Hugh Richards, the young man who has the apartment next to hers in Greenwich Village. He is rain-soaked and haggard. Hugh asks permission to go through her apartment to his for his belongings, as Brock, the superintendent, locked him out. About to leave, he collapses from hunger in Chloe's apartment. When he comes to, she insists that he change his wet clothes and share her birthday dinner.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Chloe moved the table over to the couch and laid another place. She put the interrupted coffee into the percolator and placed it on the fire, dished the chicken onto a hot platter, poured the gravy into a little silver dish, set them with the rice and the wooden bowl of salad on the table. She fitted the candles into their tiny holders and arranged them on the cake, ready to be lighted.

She listened. Dead stillness in the next room. Oh, good heavens, if he's fainting again...

But he came out, dry and clean, locking the door behind him, bringing his damn clock.

Chloe hung them before the fire, placing his wet shoes near her own, a pair of shoes on each side of Toby.

She let him sit on the couch with pillows piled behind him. Helped him to the breast of the chicken, took out the small, feather-light biscuits and dropped a piece of butter into each. It was exciting to have some one to eat with, some one who was hungry and needed food.

But her guest had no more than lifted his fork when he stopped short, listening. Chloe heard it, too. The voice of Brock, the superintendent, in the hall below.

"Sit down," said Chloe. "He's not coming up here."

But he was. They heard him on the stair.

"I won't let him in," said Chloe. "Please sit down."

The visitor bent over his bags. What did he mean to do—face Brock in the hall?

Whatever his intention, it failed. He crumpled again and lay at Chloe's feet in the exact spot he had occupied before. This time he did not breathe.

Brock was knocking at the door. Knocking hard.

Chloe let him knock. She was doing all that she had done before, dashing water over the white face, in another attempt to resuscitate the youth.

Brock unlocked the door and came in. With a mere glance at Chloe and her guest, he strode across the floor into the bathroom.

"I thought so!" he shouted to Chloe, who had hardly noticed him. "You leave the water running with something in the basin and it runs over and makes a leak downstairs. Look at these now." And he held up a pair of wet stockings. "Look at the floor, and a leak dripping downstairs."

"I'm sorry," said Chloe in a low voice.

It was that first time—that first time her caller had fainted. She had brought water from the bathroom because it was nearer than the sink. She had left the faucet running in him to eat, maybe. This will get you into trouble."

Chance-Vanzant Wedding Is A Holiday Week-End Event

A holiday week-end wedding, occurring Saturday afternoon at the hour of four o'clock, in Bristol Methodist Church, united Miss Dorothy Mae Vanzant, Swain street, and Mr. William A. Chance, of Croydon. The Rev. W. E. Preston Haas, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo V. Vanzant, 587 Swain street, was given in marriage by her father. Mr. Chance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Chance, of Leesburg, N. J.

Organ music was provided by Mrs. Samuel Smith, of Edgely. Vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Arthur Peterson, New Buckley street.

Mrs. Leonard Dugan, Buckley street, attended the former Miss Vanzant as matron of honor; and Mr. Clarence Delahanty, Cornwells Heights, was best man.

As the bride made her way to the altar she wore a floor-length gown of white satin, it having trim of lace. From a beaded tiara there fell a fingertip veil of net. She wore white kid sandals and carried a bouquet of mixed white flowers.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

Heavenly Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift, we are grateful to thee for our creation in thine own image, for thy preserving mercy through all the days of our lives, for the protection and comfort of our homes, for all who love us and whom we love, for healing in sickness, deliverance in danger and comfort in sorrow. In thy wisdom and strength cause us to be aware of these, thy blessings, and to know that they are procured, not through the agency of man, but through the beneficence of God. Enable us ever to witness to the world in which we live our constant gratitude, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Mrs. Dugan, the sister of the bride, who was matron of honor, wore a gown of aqua satin; a floral head-piece and shoulder veil to match; and white sandals.

A reception followed in the social hall of the church.

For a week-end journey to Wildwood, N. J., Mrs. Chance wore a velvet dress of burgundy shade, with black accessories. The couple will soon occupy an apartment at 567 Bath street.

MONEY

You will not be able to spend it during the next few years on the things that many people have expected.

Automobiles—household appliances—furniture and many such articles must give way to the Defense measures of our government.

This situation is going to place our nation and our people on a most sound and safe financial condition.

Most people will get their installment purchase paid for. New installment purchases will decrease because of the lack of merchandise to sell.

BUT our people will still have money to spend. We suggest that they buy heavily of Defense Bonds and that they invest in Real Estate especially in new construction of dwellings.

AND that they put away in Building Association Stock every month a substantial part of their earnings.

"BILL" LEIGH'S STEAL OF HOME IN THE TENTH GIVES EDGELY THE 1942 CHAMPIONSHIP OF SUBURBAN LEAGUE

"Bill" Leigh's clean steal of home in the tenth inning gave the Edgely A. C. the 1942 championship of the Bristol Suburban League Sunday afternoon on St. Ann's field as the Edgelyites nosed out the Voltz-Texaco nine, 6-5, in the fifth and deciding game of the series.

Leigh's stolen base climaxed one of the best series played in recent years. The entire five games were close and three went for extra innings. Edgely won the first, third, and fifth games while the others went to Voltz-Texaco.

The Edgely first-sacker's steal caught Pitcher "Loggie" Bragg completely off guard as two were out at the time. Bragg had stepped on the rubber when Leigh, usually a slow runner, put on a burst of speed and started plateward. As fast as his chubby legs would carry him, Leigh left the ground about five feet from the plate and slid over before Catcher Danny Mazzillo had caught the ball.

The steal ended the ball game as the Edgely team was the home club and the 1,000 fans who had settled down to expect a late supper began to mill about and congratulate the Edgely players. The fans had no complaints for the series was full of spectacular and unexpected plays throughout.

Credit for the pitching victory went to Ralph Linck, diminutive hurler for the Edgely team. It was Linck's third victory of the series. He beat Voltz, 3-2, in the opener; won the third game, 1-0; and then relief pitched the Edgely club to Sunday's victory.

Linck went to the mound after Ashby appeared to be tiring in the seventh frame. Two were out at the time and Voltz had a runner in scoring position. Linck retired the third batter but ran into trouble in the eighth and ninth inning only to come out on top in the extra frame.

In the seven and two-thirds innings he pitched, Ashby allowed three hits. He walked three batters and hit two others. Linck gave up three hits in the third and one-third innings he pitched.

"Loggie" Bragg who until Sunday's defeat, had won eight straight mound wins did a fine job until he fell asleep at the switch in the fatal tenth canto. It is true Bragg was nipped for ten hits but five of these came in the last three frames when the winner scored four runs.

Several times, Bragg appeared to be weakening and conferences were held in the infield but the colored hurler claimed he was alright and was permitted to continue. His mates did some nice fielding at times and three double-plays helped him out of several jams. One of these, Berry to Cooper, prevented Edgely from winning the game in the ninth inning.

Edgely had two fielding gems on its side of the book. In the sixth, Eddie Hunter robbed Jimmy Cooper out of an extra base hit by a back-handed gloved catch of his fly. And in the ninth, "Vic" Rockhill came in tearing fast to catch Gallagher's fly behind second base.

"Eddie" DeKoy, manager of the Edgelyites, pulled a bit of strategy to deadlock and almost won the game in the ninth inning. With Johnny Dick on first base as the result of a single and Edgely one run behind, Alex Dewnap took his turn at the plate. All the fans as well as the Voltz team expected a hunt to move the runner around and as Dewnap is one of the best sacrificers in the circuit, the Voltz infield came in close to try to get Dick at second.

But Manager DeKoy flashed the hit-run signal and the result was that Dewnap sent a hit along the third base line that went for a double to score Dick from first base. However a moment later, Berry caught Dewnap at third with a perfect throw from center after catching Hunter's fly. But DeKoy's hit-run signal had tied the score and sent the game into the extra frame.

YOUTH WILL BATTLE IN PLAY-OFF SERIES

The youth of Bristol will shine to-night. For tonight will see the opening game of the playoff series to determine the baseball championship of the Diamond Youth League. The game will be played between Voltz-Texaco and Third Ward on St. Ann's field, starting at 5:45 o'clock.

The winner of tonight's game will meet Franklin A. C. in the title clash Thursday night. Franklin drew a bye in the drawing for the playoff.

Equipment had handicapped the boys but this was settled when they began to borrow the paraphernalia of the teams in the Bristol Suburban League. The balls used were discarded from the teams in the Suburban League and many teams earned the balls by sending "ball-chasers" to the Suburban League games.

The close of the season saw three teams in a deadlock for first place, Franklin, Voltz-Texaco, and Third Ward. Each had won eight and lost four and Croydon in fourth place was only trailing by a game. The other teams following were also bunched with the exception of the Harriman boys.

Both teams will use their ace hurlers in the tilt. Voltz-Texaco has a good battery in Art Goheen and Joe Fanini. Goheen has won most of the hill victories for the gasoleers this season. Voltz also has a hard-playing third baseman in Tazik, brother of the boy who plays shortstop for the Voltz team in the Suburban League. Goheen has allowed four hits in 21 innings of baseball.

Len Simons, of no-run, no-hit fame, will pitch for Third Ward. Umpires will be players of the Suburban League, while Thomas Juno, official scorer for the Bristol Suburban League, will do the book marking.

BRISTOL A. A. DEFEATS STRONG RIVERTON CLUB

The Bristol A. A. traveled to Riverton, N. J., yesterday afternoon and defeated the strong club of that town by the score of 4 to 3. Danny Keegan was on the hill for the A. A. club and pitched good ball. The Jersey club was first to score. Benhoe reached first on Cooper's error. Bacon singled to right and both runners scored on Cart's double to left. This lead was evened up in the second when Doster walked and Bill Berry drove the ball out of the park for a long home run, tying up the score at 2 all. This was all the scoring until the 6th. When Mazzillo singled to left went all the way to third on Everett's bunt and stole home while VanAmberg was winding up. This lead only was held by the A. A. club until the Jersey men's next time at bat when Snyder, the Riverton catcher from Duke University doubled and scored on VanAmberg's long single to right field. The A. A. club put the game away in their half of the eighth inning when Goodwin drove a triple to left field and scored on a wild pitch by VanAmberg.

The Bristol A. A. club will travel to Vineland, N. J., next Sunday.

"They have to be tough or they couldn't take the training, but they're under a terrific tension."

In the hospital, the girls sometimes write letters, but most frequently they study, Dr. Garber said. They don't want to miss out.

Dr. Moore is 39, and Dr. Garber, blonde and brown-eyed, is 26. They expect to be joined soon by more women doctors who will be staff members of the Post Hospital.

"We only work with women," Dr. Moore said, "except, of course, in an emergency. I like working with the women here, and we're fond of the work because it's new and interesting."

Dr. Garber, whose father is a doctor, has a double interest in her work. Her sister, Eleanor, of Dunkirk, Ind., is an officer candidate at the fort.

"Neither of us knew we'd be together, but it was a grand surprise," Dr. Garber said. "This life agrees with Eleanor, just as it agrees with all the rest of the WAACS. They're the healthiest bunch I've seen in a long time."

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly
 (Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Despite the hot daytime weather of Hollywood, the evenings are usually chilly. So one can understand why, at the Hollywood Bowl the other evening, Alexis Smith, lovely Warner Bros. star who will be seen next in "The Constant Nymph," attended the ballet performance in a fur wrap. Alexis topped a black crepe dress with a silver fox cape and an interesting shocking pink snood. The snood, of web-like chenille, was fashioned more like a pancake beret. It fitted on the back of the head, held securely to Alexis' blond locks with a black velvet bow-comb.

Ida Lupino, who will be seen next in Warner Bros. "The Hard Way," went surf-fishing at Malibu last week. She wore a clever slacks suit of MacArthur green gabardine. The slacks, cropped at the knees, were topped with a yellow shirt and the green son-wester. Ida's sun-tan is really radiant—there's no need for liquid hose for Ida.

Glenda Farrell suppered at Lucey's just before heading East in a dashing suit of Russian brown cavalry twill. The skirt was straight and the snug-buttoned jacket featured a small, rippled peplum. Glenda's turban, a John Fredericks model, was Roman-striped in bright autumn shades to match a huge pouch purse.

Dinner In Trenton Follows Marino-Paoletti Ceremony

A reception at the home of the bride's parents, and a dinner served in Trenton, N. J., followed the marriage ceremony on Sunday at 2:30 p. m., which united Miss Esther Paoletti and Mr. Dominick Henry Marino.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constantino Paoletti, 1618 Trenton avenue, and Mr. Marino is the son of Mrs. Nicholas Marino, 605 Wood street. Mr. Paoletti gave his daughter in marriage. The ceremony was solemnized in Zion Lutheran Church, with the Rev. Louis Grilli, pastor of the Italian Christian Church, officiating.

The white satin gown of the bride had a lace midriff, long sleeves and a lengthy train. Her veil was attached to a headpiece which was trimmed with orange blossoms. As she entered the edifice she carried a white Bible on which was placed two lavender toned orchids. For the recessional she carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

Miss Dora Corrae, Trenton avenue, maid of honor, wore a gown of blue; and the bridesmaids, the Misses Dora Salvati, Roosevelt street, and Elizabeth DiGregorio, Mansion street, were attired in rose. The brides of the gowns were of taffeta, and the wide skirts were of net over taffeta. Sleeves were elbow length. Their picture hats were of net with trim of velvet in shades darker than their gowns. Bouquets were formed of mixed flowers.

The best men were Mr. Frank Vito, West Bristol, and Mr. Joseph Paoletti, brother of the bride.

The reception, immediately after the ceremony, was held at the Paoletti home, with dinner served at six o'clock at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Trenton, N. J. The newlyweds then left for a week's stay in New York City. The bride's travelling ensemble was a black crepe dress with white trim, black felt hat with veil, black acces-

 The Rev. Wilmer E. Harkness, pastor, performed the ceremony in Neshaminy Methodist Church, which was decorated with baskets of vari-colored gladioli, palms and white candles in candelabras.

The bride had as her matron of honor, Mrs. Edward Reading, Fallington, a sister of the groom; maid of honor, Miss Betty Mae Anderson, Newtown; bridesmaids, Miss Ernestine Rissinger, Hulmeville; Mrs. Milton Anderson, Newtown; Mrs. Charles Jones, Bristol; and Miss Norma Cooper, Hulmeville; flower girl, Eileen Tracy.

Groomsman for Mr. Anderson was Mr. Edward Reading, Fallington; and the ushers were Messrs. Milton Anderson, Newtown, and Raymond Anderson, Oxford Valley, brothers of the groom. The bride was given in marriage by her step-father, Mr. James Tate.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Adeline E. Reetz sang special selections, she being accompanied at the organ by Miss Clara L. Illick, who also played the bridal marches.

White slipper satin was used for the bridal gown, the long sleeves, puffed at the shoulders, ending in points over the hands. The neckline was round, having inserts of lace. The gown, made princess style, had a long train. The bridal veil of net, edged with lace, was attached to a tiara of pearls and lace. Slippers were of satin and the bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

The matron of honor, maid of honor and bridesmaids wore gowns patterned similarly. The four bridesmaids wore blue taffeta with overskirts of net. Sleeves were short and puffed, and necklines were square with clusters of flowers at either side. The gowns were floor-length. The gown of the matron of honor was in aqua tone, and that of the maid of honor in yellow, the latter being minus the net over-skirt. Each attendant wore a wreath of white daisies in her hair, and slippers were of white kid. The sextet of attendants carried fan-shaped arm bouquets, the bridesmaids having pink roses; and the other two bridesmaids wore a floor-length gown of pink taffeta with a net over-skirt. Bows of blue ribbon enhanced the neckline. Her slippers were of white, and her hair-wreath was composed of rosebuds. She carried a nose-gay of mixed roses.

To her attendants the bride presented single strands of pearls; and Mr. Anderson gave the best man and ushers initialed tie clasps.

A reception was held at the Tate residence following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are participating in a week's trip. The bride was costumed for the journey in a two-tone beige linen suit, brown felt hat and accessories of brown. Her corsage of white asters was heart-shaped. The couple will reside at the Tate home.

At five o'clock a wedding supper was served members of the Price and Cook families in the social room of the church. Upon their return from a week's trip Mr. Cook and bride will reside in the new housing development at Bristol Terrace.

The floor-length costume chosen by the bride for the ceremony was of ivory satin, the gown having a sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves, and an over-skirt of net. Her mitts were of lace, and she wore white satin slippers. A finger-tip veil was held by an orange blossom head-piece. The bride carried an arm bouquet of white bridal roses.

Mrs. Schulz, the matron of honor, wore a gown of two-tone green taffeta with lace inserts at the neckline. Sleeves were short. Her green velvet flowered head-piece held a shoulder drape veil of matching tone, and her lace mitts were also in green. Silver slippers were chosen, and her arm bouquet was made up of pink rosebuds.

Miss Muffett was attired in dusty pink taffeta. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline, and three-quarter sleeves. Her velvet flowered head-piece with shoulder head veil matched her gown; slippers were of silver and she also carried pink rose-buds.

The travelling costume of Mrs. Cook was a light blue wool suit, navy velvet hat and navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Mrs. Price, mother of the bride, was attired for the ceremony in a silk dress of salute blue, and wore a matching felt hat, and a corsage of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Cook, the groom's mother, wore a navy blue silk dress, navy blue hat, and corsage of pink rose-buds.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were strands of pearls; and Mr. Cook presented his groomsman and ushers with tie pins.
